Gopher Control Program is open for the season. Purchase approved gopher control products before July 31 to be eligible for 50% rebate. Receipts need to be returned to the Rural Municipal of Willow Bunch No. 42 by July 29, 2026 so there is time to submit.

Strychnine is not eligible for rebate under the Gopher Control Program.

Strychnine Stewardship Program

Overview

The Strychnine Stewardship Program allows the targeted use of strychnine for Richardson's ground squirrel (RGS) management when significant economic damage is occurring or imminent in eligible areas of Saskatchewan. Strychnine cannot be used in residential or public areas or any other areas that may be open to the public.

The program prioritizes environmental protection, including species at risk and other non-target species, user accountability and integrated pest management (IPM). The program ensures the requirements of the current Emergency Use Registration (EUR), which is valid until November 1, 2027, are met.

Purpose

The Strychnine Stewardship Program provides users in eligible areas facing serious infestations of RGS with access to strychnine to control RGS within the constraints of the approved EUR. Strychnine can only be used on agricultural land.

Strychnine is an important tool for control, but it must be used in an integrated approach with other registered alternatives and cultural control.

Integrated Pest Management (IPM)

IPM is critical for long-term sustainable management of RGS. IPM methods for RGS include the use of alternative rodenticides to strychnine, as well as cultural and biological management methods. Used together, all these methods can reduce RGS pressure.

A key biological and cultural control method for RGS is the tolerance of natural predators. RGS are native to Saskatchewan and have a huge variety of natural predators that can have a significant impact on RGS populations. Certain RGS predators, such as badgers and coyotes, can cause issues for producers, but it is important to tolerate these nuisances as much as possible, since these species actively hunt RGS and are critical in keeping populations in control. Weasels, raptors and snakes can also be important predators of RGS and other pests.

Vegetative height management can reduce the number of RGS, because of their preference for short grasses. Whenever possible, maintain vegetation on pastures or forage at a height greater than 15 centimetres. Hunting and trapping are more labour-intensive management strategies, but they can also contribute to effective management.

Proper use and storage of control products is critical. It is important to read the product label for the rodenticide you plan to use. For example, moisture and high temperatures in storage or transport can reduce the efficacy of zinc phosphide. To maintain its efficacy, strychnine must be stored above freezing temperatures.

Producers should tolerate low numbers of RGS that will not cause significant economic losses. This will promote healthy, natural predator populations and reduce unnecessary costs for producers.

Training

Training is mandatory for all strychnine users and distributors:

- All users and RMs participating as a strychnine distributor vendor must complete mandatory training. Training is available online through the SARM website (sarm.ca/strychnine-stewardship-training).
- Proof of training completion is required before strychnine can be purchased. Ensure you select the RM office where you plan to pick up your strychnine. This will ensure that the RM receives your records and can validate that you have completed your training.
- Training must be completed every year strychnine is used.

How Do I Obtain Strychnine?

- Through the Strychnine Stewardship Program, strychnine will be distributed by RM offices that have completed the mandatory training and have expressed interest in participating as a distributor.
- First Nation Communities within the eligible strychnine use area may obtain strychnine from the nearest RM that is distributing strychnine.
- RMs in eligible areas have the choice to opt out and not participate as a distributor. In this case, strychnine will not be available within the RM unless the RM makes an agreement to have a neighbouring RM in the eligible area distribute it on their behalf.
- Users must sign a Treatment Plan and Declaration Form.
  - In the Treatment Plan and Declaration Form, users will commit to follow all label restrictions, adhere to requirements of the Strychnine Stewardship Program and participate in field audits when requested.
- Producers will purchase strychnine from the participating RM office they selected as their primary RM on their training documentation.
- Supplies will be distributed evenly among participating RMs, with a per-producer cap to manage limited supply.
  - The user may apply strychnine that they purchased in their primary RM in other eligible RMs where they occupy land.
  - All treatment locations must be within the EUR approved use area.
- Supplies will be limited this growing season. The recommended window for spring application of strychnine ends June 15, after which application is less effective. We encourage producers to use other RGS management options this spring as early intervention and an integrated approach provide the best control outcomes.
- Strychnine will be available for the late summer application window from July 15 and September 1.

Species at Risk (SAR) Assessments

SAR assessments must be completed before strychnine can be purchased. The SAR assessment may result in the following:

- No acceptable use of strychnine in certain locations.
- Increased risk mitigation measures, which may include the need to monitor for surface carcasses and ejected bait twice daily for the first week after application.

SAR assessments are necessary to ensure that strychnine is being used in away that poses acceptable risk to the environment. If this is not followed, the regulator (Pesticides Regulatory Directorate, formerly the Pest Management Regulatory Agency) may not grant additional EURs or full registration of strychnine in the future.

To ensure users are following the SAR assessment results, users must document the prescribed additional risk mitigation (if any) and note details of the actions they have taken to adhere to the prescription.

Monitoring

Mandatory monitoring is a critical component of the Strychnine Stewardship Program for all RMs and users. These components are outlined below:

- At a minimum, all users must monitor the site at least daily for the first week after application, looking for RGS carcasses present on the soil surface and ejected bait. Weekly monitoring must continue for an additional three weeks (four-week total monitoring period). Additional monitoring may be required based on the SAR. If carcasses are found, they must be disposed of properly (see Disposal section below).
- As noted in the SAR Assessment section, increased monitoring may be required as a result of the SAR assessment. This may include documenting two monitoring events per day for the first week of application, followed by the standard three-week period of weekly monitoring (four-week total monitoring period).
- Monitoring for the presence of SAR. Users must monitor and report any presence of SAR.
    - Key SAR species present in Saskatchewan include swift fox, burrowing owl, ferruginous hawk, short eared owl, American badger, black-tailed prairie dog and Ord's kangaroo rat.
    - Information on species at risk can be found here.
- Monitoring and reporting of non-target poisoning. This includes SAR and all other non-target animal species.

Emergency Use Restrictions

Geographical restrictions were a requirement put forward by the Pesticides Regulatory Directorate (PRD). Under the approved EUR, the eligible area in Saskatchewan includes 208 rural municipalities located in roughly 15 crop districts located in southern and western Saskatchewan. RMs included in the eligible area were selected based on a careful consideration of species at risk presence, the ministry's RGS survey results, and Saskatchewan Crop Insurance claims data.

Strychnine use is only recommended within the following application windows: March 1 to June 15 and July 15 to September 1.

Audits

Auditing is a requirement of the Strychnine Stewardship Program. Two types of audits will occur:

- Audits of records: This will include the RMs sales records, including information from all mandatory forms. RMs must also track the training status of users. It is the RMs responsibility to ensure users have provided complete and accurate information.
- In-field audits: Audits will be conducted by qualified personnel to ensure strychnine is being used properly. Users of strychnine must agree not to prevent audits before they are able to access strychnine.

What Happens If I Do Not Follow the Stewardship Program?

You will lose access to strychnine.

Close adherence to all EUR restrictions is mandatory. The Strychnine Stewardship Program includes new risk mitigation measure to reduce risks to an acceptable level and allowed the EUR to be granted. The revised EUR includes a limited geographic range and product use restrictions aimed to reduce risks to non-target animals. There is an increased level of effort required by both users and participating RMs. Potential users that are unable to meet the requirements of the Stewardship Program must not apply strychnine.

Future Access to Strychnine

The current EUR is valid until November 1, 2027. The registration status beyond this date is unknown. The registration status is determined federally by PRD. Future access to strychnine will be impacted by the following:

- Users' adherence to the current EUR, including all required directions on the product label.
- RMs and users adhering to the Strychnine Stewardship Program.
- Proper record-keeping, with accurate complete information provided.
- The PRD's review of the annual report submitted by the province, which will include audit results.

Disposal

Proper disposal is required for unused strychnine, surface carcasses and ejected bait:

- Any strychnine not used during the season for which it was purchased must be returned to the applicator's RM office where the strychnine was purchased. The RM office will document the returned strychnine and ensure the amount of strychnine reported to be used by the user matches the number of returned bottles. If the records are falsified or excess strychnine has not been returned, the user will not be able to purchase additional supply the following year.
- Carcasses of RGS and any other non-target animals found on the surface must be disposed of properly. Ejected bait found on the surface must also be properly disposed of.

    - Disposal instructions are outlined on the strychnine label: "All carcasses and all uneaten bait present must be disposed of by incineration or burial in a pit no less than 46 cm (approx. 18 inches) deep then covered to prevent scavengers from unearthing them."
- Non-target carcasses need to be recorded and reported.

WILLOW BUNCH RECREATION & COMMUNITY WELLNESS

Willow Bunch Recreation and Community Wellness

May 2026, Recreation Director Report

It is hard to believe that it has already been one full year since the inception of the Recreation and Community Wellness program here in Willow Bunch & Surrounding Area. Time truly has flown by.

Over the past year, there have certainly been challenges, many learning opportunities, and countless moving parts along the way. But above all else, there have been so many meaningful moments, connections, and memories created through community wellness, recreation, and programming. I have genuinely enjoyed this position, the work involved, and most importantly, the people who make this community so special.

A heartfelt thank you goes out to everyone who has participated, volunteered, supported, donated, attended, encouraged, or helped in any way — young and old alike. Whether you attended a program, helped set up tables, volunteered at an event, shared ideas, spread the word, or simply showed up, you have helped make this past year a success. Community programming only works when a community comes together, and Willow Bunch and surrounding area continues to do just that.

Yoga wrapped up in May, and a very special thank you goes out to Devyn Deblois from Station Spin Studio in Rockglen for leading our classes throughout April and May. We truly appreciated your time, energy, and expertise, and we look forward to welcoming you back again this fall.

Our Wednesday Youth Program continues to see a wonderful turnout each week. Programming will remain at the Hills of Home throughout the month of June before moving outdoors by the swimming pool for July and August. Please note that beginning in July and August, the youth program will continue on Wednesdays but with a new start time of 3:30 pm. Throughout the summer, children of all ages are welcome to attend; however, non-school-age children must be accompanied by an adult.

Cornhole continues every Wednesday evening at 6:30 pm, rain or shine. If the weather is unfavorable, we simply move indoors and continue the fun there. Everyone is always welcome.

A reminder as well that the Meals on Wheels program will transition to the golf course clubhouse for the summer season. A big thank you to Erin and her team for taking this on from June through to the end of September. Your willingness to help continue this important program is very much appreciated.

Another wonderful highlight this spring was the workshop hosted by Diana Nelson from Mabel & Martha’s on Sunday, May 24th. With a group of 13 participants, Diana once again shared her incredible creativity and talent while making everyone feel capable and accomplished. Her classes are always enjoyable, welcoming, and inspiring. I personally always enjoy attending and would highly recommend her workshops whenever you have the opportunity. Thank you again, Diana.

A sincere thank you to our sponsors and funding partners, including the Community Initiatives Fund (CIF) and the Saskatchewan Parks and Recreation Association (SPRA). Your financial support continues to make recreation and community programming possible within our community.

June is shaping up to be another busy month, including an upcoming art class on the weekend of June 13th and 14th, along with preparations for the swimming pool opening. Watch for upcoming posters and announcements regarding the pool season, which is tentatively scheduled to begin the week of June 27th. Swimming lesson registration is open for the Richardson's Aquatic Facility! Two lesson sessions are being offered this summer, July 6-10th and August 10-16th. Registration forms are available at the Post Office, Town Office and online.

We are currently in the process of installing two new pergolas — one inside the pool yard and one just outside the pool area — and hope to have the project completed within the next couple of weeks. This project is another wonderful community joint effort, with various groups and individuals assisting through both volunteer support and financial contributions. More information and acknowledgements will be shared once the project is complete.

Thank you again to everyone for your continued support, encouragement, participation, and community spirit. It truly takes all of us working together to continue building opportunities, connections, and wellness within our community.
